This Weekend:

Online I found this post about how Covid 19 spreads:

Where I went the past week:

Went for a hike at White Point Nature Preserve the day it reopened. No crowds there so felt it was pretty safe. I've been there before but this was the first time that I walked the perimeter of the preserve. To the west of the closed visitor center I found an informational plaque explaining how at the base of White Point there had been a recreational spa for Japanese Americans from 1915 to the Long Beach Earthquake of 1933. I found more information online at
