Emergence: Art from Life is singular among PST ART exhibitions for its presentation of living biological artworks and projects created in collaboration with a global cohort of synthetic biologists and medical researchers. Visitors will encounter human bones grown from synthetic mother-of-pearl; objects dyed with bioengineered indigo pigment; and living, microscopic human tear glands that cry. These works invite us to consider what it means to be human now: our aspirations, follies, entanglements, and impacts on symbiotic life forms, each other, and the planet.

High-Definition Kabuki Screening

Acclaimed Kabuki & Taiko Collaboration

Tamasaburo Bando x Kodo Cinema Kabuki: “Yugen”(幽玄)

What is Cinema Kabuki?

Since 2005, Kabuki production company Shochiku Co. Ltd. has released Cinema Kabuki which offers English speakers the unique opportunity to experience full-scale Kabuki performances by some of Japan's biggest stars in high definition on the big screen with English subtitles. This, however, is no regular film screening; Cinema Kabuki allows the audience to vividly experience the excitement of the live stage through the full use and wide-range capability of high-definition (HD) images and 6-channel sound. Enjoy the authenticity of Kabuki as if you were sitting in the best seat of the Metropolitan Opera House!

Where I went the past weeks and may have heard of at the last minute (and before, since webinars are often still available online):

Finally read:

Asians and Pacific Islanders and the Civil War Paperback – January 1, 2015

by Carol A. \(Editor\) Shively (Author)

Which is still available on Amazon but is not cheap. I actually made money on this one (purchased in 2015 used), but I am not going to sell it.

Surprising numbers of Asians and Pacific Islanders participated in the American Civil War, mostly on the Union side. Although often accepted in their units and in post war associations, after the war their service was usually met with ingratitude by the general population. Highly recommended.

Watched live webinar on Urushi, Japanese lacquerware. Some highlights available online at:

<https://www.japancraft21.com/>

plus schedule of next online programs.

Did not know it does not need a substrate.

Paid a visit to MOLAA in Long Beach. One of the exhibits is similar to one of the PST exhibits at the Getty Center. My photos at:

and you can compare to the Getty at:

I liked them both and they sort of complemented each other.

At the last minute bought a ticket to the Tulips in Harmony concert at the Torrance Salvation Army. This was a community style concert combining artists of different backgrounds performing Western classical, Ghili tunes, and Japanese koto music.

<https://www.tulipsinharmony.org/>

Visited the LA Maritime Museum where the exhibits included photos from the canneries on Terminal Island, including the Japanese employees. Learned about the Japanese deep sea divers who harvested abalone before World War II. Upstairs was an exhibit on Japanese American life on Terminal Island before the Evacuation. My photos at:

On Sunday learned at the last minute of a special day at the Japanese Garden in the Sepulveda Basin. Besides being open on Sunday for free without reservations, there were bonsai and kamishibai demonstrations. My photos at:

Actually, the garden is temporarily operating on a walk-in basis even on normal days. Check the website:

Finished reading:

First Class, Nisei Linguists in World War II, Origins of the Military Intelligence Service Language program – January 1, 2008

by David W. Swift Jr. (Author), David A Bramlett \(General U.S Army \(Ret\)\) (Foreword)

Which is available used on Amazon for $189.45, unfortunately.

As the title implies, the books includes accounts of the first class of the MISLp, both Nisei and white, back when the school started in a hangar at the Presidio in San Francisco. Entries for students and instructors vary in length and depth, depending on how much was willing to be shared. Most of the students were kibeis, those educated to some extent in Japan, and so it ties in with the book mentioned last week, as well as Two Homelands, which I finished a bit earlier.

Caught the last 20 minutes of the Chinatown Massacre webinar.

Finished reading

Citizens, Immigrants, and the Stateless: A Japanese American Diaspora in the Pacific
By Michael R. Jin

This book covers the relatively unexplored subject of the Japanese Americans who returned to Japan before World War II in search of educational and professional opportunities not available in the racist US. Includes a chapter on the tragic kibeis reporter and community organizer Akira Itami.

I made it to the last day of the Orange County Japan Fair, which seemed to be the day with the most traditional entertainment. It was a bigger event than I expected, although it took over only a small part of the OC Fairgrounds. There were 2 stages and plenty of booths and food opportunities. I thought some of the entertainment was pretty good. My photos at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/OCJapanFair2024/index.htm>

Back on Oct. 5 I attended the East San Gabriel Valley Japanese Community Center Akimatsuri. My photos at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/ESGVJCCAkimatsuri2024/index.htm>

While on vacation I came across the Borden Chinese Cemetery. My photos and more information at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/ChineseCemetery2024/index.htm>

On the way to Arches and Canyonlands, stopped at the Moab Museum where they had a special exhibit on the imprisonment of Japanese Americans during World War II. The local connection was that north of Moab at Dalton Wells was the Moab Isolation Center Ruins and Dalton Wells CCC Camp. The site is currently closed for restoration. The sign from the site is at the Moab Museum. You can find the site on Google Maps.

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/MoabMuseum2024/index.htm>

I planned my trip to make it to Wakamatsu Farm Public Day. Actually, they told me that you can call and schedule a visit at other times. This was the site of the first Japanese settlement in the US, led by German samurai Henry Schnell.

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/Wakamatsu2024/index.htm>

While driving through Elko, Nevada, I came across the California Trails Interpretive Center which included a mural depicting Chinese workers building the railroad.

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/CaliforniaTrails2024/index.htm>

Visited the Banning House Museum and the Drum Barracks to learn a little more about local history. (Indoor photography not allowed.)

For Labor Day, I went to see the Long Beach Labor Day Parade and Picnic. My photos at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/LaborDay2024/index.htm>

I dropped in at the Long Beach Buddhist Church Obon, probably one of the last of the season. I had a traditional refreshment of somen and a chili dog. Large crowd for the venue and they really got into the dancing. My photos at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/LBObon2024/index.htm>

I made it to the last day of Nisei Week. Caught a little of the festival on the JACCC plaza, bonsai exhibit, and then the Ondo. My photos at: Nisei Week closing \(ikemi.info\)

Almost the end of the Obon season. Last ones locally are Long Beach and Las Vegas this Sunday.

Attended the Nisei Week Parade; my photos at:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/NiseiWeek2024/index.htm>

Finally finished reading the sometimes controversial Two Homelands by Toyoko Yamasaki.

For more info see Densho: https://encyclopedia.densho.org/Two_Homelands_\(book\)//)

The story is a highly fictionalized version of the life of scholar, intellectual, community organizer, newspaperman, and soldier in the MIS during World War II, David Akira Itami, merged with the combat experiences of Harry Fukuhara. I have to read Midnight in Broad Daylight by Pamela Rotner Sakamoto which tells Fukuhara's story.

Itami is considered a Ritchie Boy and there is an online article on him: David Akira Itami: A Kibei Tragedy <https://www.ritchiemuseum.org/post/david-akira-itami-a-kibei-tragedy>

Also there is a chapter on Itami in the book:

Citizens, Immigrants, and the Stateless: A Japanese American Diaspora in the Pacific \(Asian America\) by Michael R. Jin

Itami was a much more complex person than the character in Two Homelands and conflicted in a different way. If he hadn't committed suicide, he might have played an important role in postwar Little Tokyo.

As a side note, unlike the fictional version, Itami's wife was a nice person and his daughter Michi Itami is a noted visual artist..

A little earlier I finished reading Masao: A Nisei Soldier's Secret and Heroic Role in World War II

by Sandra Vea is a biography of Masao Abe, a Kibei and MIS member who experienced a life similar in many ways to the character in Two Homelands, but without the internal conflicts, in spite of originally being educated to be a Japanese officer.

On Saturday I attended the Boyle Heights Nikkei Celebration. The parade had only 3 groups participating, but a lot of energy. The stage entertainment was quite good. My photos at: Boyle Heights Nikkei Celebration \(ikemi.info\)

On Sunday I made it to the Gardena Obon, which was huge.

Gardena Obon \(ikemi.info\)

On Saturday I dropped in on the Higashi Obon, their first obon back at the temple in 5 (?) years. Lots of food, including udon which hasn't been very common this obon season. Entertainment. My photos at: <http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/Higashi2024/index.htm>

On Sunday I went to the West LA Obon. This one was really packed, and they had udon, too. <http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/WLA2024/index.htm>

On Saturday I visited the Venice Obon Festival. My photos at Venice Obon Festival \(ikemi.info\)

On Sunday I caught the last day of the manga exhibit at the JACCC: Manga Exhibit at the JACCC \(ikemi.info\)

Also made it to the Zenshuji Obon, one of the smallest, but it had a very interesting entertainment lineup this year: [Full disclosure, I donate to Zenshuji] Zenshuji Obon \(ikemi.info\)

On Saturday visited the Lotus Festival in Echo Park. My photos at:

Lotus Festival \(ikemi.info\)

Also made it to the Nishi Obon:

Nishi Obon Festival \(ikemi.info\)

Attended the Senshin Obon. My photos at

This is the one where you light oil lamps in memory of those who have passed.

Visited the San Gabriel Valley Matsuri Fundraiser. My photos at

Gardena Valley JCI Matsuri Fundraiser \(ikemi.info\)

Sunday made a quick trip to the Bridge America Matsuri in Torrance. Wasn't able to get out the door soon enough, so missed most of the cultural performances. Bridge Natsu Matsuri \(ikemi.info\)

Sunday made it to The San Fernando Valley Buddhist Temple Obon at the Community Center:

San Fernando Obon \(ikemi.info\)

Made it to the second day of the Sun Valley Obon. My photos at: Sun Valley Obon \(ikemi.info\)

Watched the

Irei no Hi: Remembering the Battle of Okinawa webinar and learned a few things.

Observed Juneteenth at the Huntington Gardens:

Huntington Gardens \(ikemi.info\)

Saw the Mineo Mizuno: Homage to Nature installation:

Mineo Mizuno: Homage to Nature | The Huntington

Didn't notice any special Juneteenth activities, although during the Chinese music recital I looked up Juneteenth on my smartphone, and learned learning about Juneteenth was a way of observing. Also learned that it means realizing you have the right to choose what you want to do. [not being told by someone who controls your life what to do, as I interpret it]

I watched "My Broken Mariko" online as part of the Japanese Film Festival. The movie portion is finished but you can still watch a couple of TV serials:

JAPANESE FILM FESTIVAL ONLINE 2024 | JFF+ \(jpf.go.jp\)

I finally made it out to see the Anna May Wong exhibit at CAMLA. It was compact but well done, including clips from some of her movies appearances. My photos at:

Anna May Wong exhibit at CAMLA \(ikemi.info\)

Next door in the Pico building (Plaza Building) I accidentally found Hablada en Espanol, and exhibit on the Spanish language versions of Hollywood movies that were shot at night. I got to see a screening of the Spanish language version of Dracula that was quite entertaining and afterwards a panel with producer and director Pancho Kohner, son of the female lead of the film. My photos at:

Hablada en Espanol exhibit in the Plaza House \(ikemi.info\)

On Sunday I made it to the San Gabriel Japanese Community Center Fun Festival. My photos at:

San Gabriel Japanese Community Center Summer Fun Fest \(ikemi.info\)

While browsing through the original Twilight Zone on Prime, I came across a performance by a very young George Takei in an episode called "The Encounter". Perhaps a problematic portrayal of a very troubled Japanese American and a WW2 vet haunted by his own and external demons.

It's a little far, but the Asian galleries in the Cleveland Museum of Art are quite impressive.

Photos at: <http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/CMA2024/index.htm> plus, there was a special exhibit on Korean Couture.

Visited Fort Monroe at Hampton Roads and learned about the first landing of African Americans and General Butler's contraband legal maneuver. Better lawyer than a general. My photos at:

Decided to visit Coachella Valley History Museum where they have a small Japanese garden. Learned a little about the history of the Japanese American farmers in the Coachella Valley. My photos at

Made a trip to Santa Ana to see the exhibit on Asian Comics at the Bowers Museum. By chance caught the lecture by the curator Paul Gravett. Bought a heavy bag of books.

Went to see the Smithsonian exhibit: The Negro Motorist Green Book Exhibit at the Petersen Automotive Museum.

Highly worth it. Ends March 10.

Lot of things happened this past weekend, including more Lunar New Year events as well as Day of Remembrance.

I decided to go to the Golden Dragon Parade in Downtown Chinatown on Saturday:

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/GoldenDragon2024/index.htm> and then the Lunar New Year Festival in Alhambra.

<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/AlhambraLunar2024/index.htm>

Before the Golden Dragon Parade I managed to get into the Japanese Poster Exhibit at the JACCC:

A gift shop at the JACCC is now open depending on when they can get volunteers to staff it.
Worth seeing for the Noguchi lanterns.

I went to the LA Arboretum on Saturday for their Lunar New Year Festival. Parking was terrible and by the time I got in the main events were over. Still it was a great day. Photos at:

On Sunday I tried again at the Huntington Garden. Again, parking was a problem. I missed the Peking Opera but there were still a lot of performances going on.

Went to the South Coast Botanic Garden for their Lunar New Year Festival, but it was moved indoors due to the weather. Looked like a long line so I took in what was outdoors. Anyway, my photos at Lunar New Year at South Coast Botanic Garden \(ikemi.info\) and the event will repeat Saturdays and Sundays for the rest of February.

Watched the Japan Foundation webinar on Japanese dolls

2024/1/18: Japan Foundation to present Online Lecture "Ningyo: The Beauty and Artistry of Japanese Dolls" by Meher McArthur, Thursday, Jan. 18, 7:00-7:40PM | Cultural News

Missed the Asian Expo due to health issues. Remember to stay home if you are not feeling well!

Made an appearance at the Oshogatsu event at the JANM.

I then took the Metro to Union Station to see the display on the original Chinatown that was located where Union Station now stands.

I then crossed the street to see CAMLA and the last day of the Boba exhibit. My photos at:
<http://ikemi.info/Graphics2024/JANM2024/index.htm>

Attended the Shogatsu celebration at Weller Court in Little Tokyo. My photos at:

Managed to get the virtual JACCC Kotohajime on my Smartphone. Streamed the Drive My Car movie.

Finished streaming the Kurara movie about Hokusai's daughter.

Saw the Viewing Stones exhibit at the Huntington Gardens. Most crowded I've ever seen it. They must be catching on.
