

2023 Holiday Greetings.

Hope you and yours are doing well and are looking forward to 2024. Hope I got that right. There were a few times this past year where I was thinking it was already 2024.

More webinars. More time spent trying to understand how the Universe works:) Maintaining bootleg bird feeders in the adjacent park and hoping the local coyote protects them. Sequestering carbon by raising, or killing, more plants. Good year for persimmons and Japanese peppers. Kind of overdid the succulents. Bad year for complete sentences.

More camera gear to take photos to post in my online galleries where no-one will ever see them, which may be a good thing. Shooting film was fun until film prices started skyrocketing. Annoying when your obscure hobby becomes popular.

By the way, the URL for the photo gallery is My Travels \(ikemi.info\), or ikemi.info/mytravel.html, if you are reading this in hardcopy. If I am still writing my Holiday Greetings in the future, they may become virtual, posted on my website, so you will have the luxury of clicking or not. I promise to clean up my website someday, but navigation may still be a challenge.

Still working my DIY projects in a random fashion. Haven't blown up anything lately.

I updated my blog at dkikemi.wordpress.com, where there are travel blogs with links to the photo galleries, perhaps clarifying their intent. I removed myself from X (formerly Twitter) and am on Instagram after giving up on Mastodon (2 posts to date).

Stay safe.